Right: The current lake record Largemouth Bass. Elvis Presley Lake is bass crowded, and anglers are encouraged to harvest smaller bass when visiting the lake to allow the larger fish to reach trophy size.

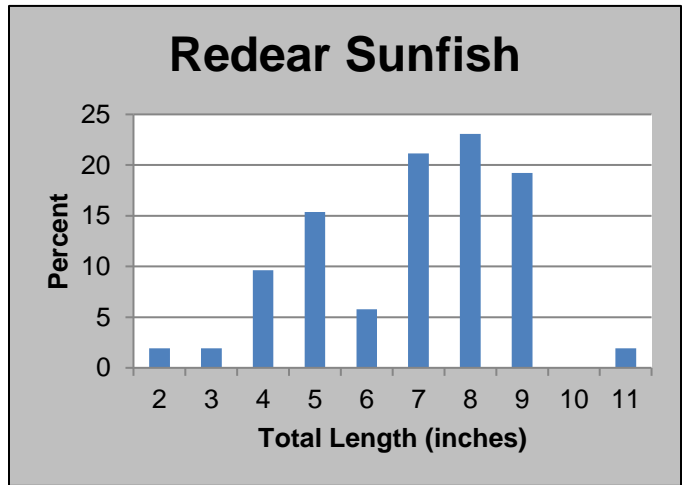

Left: Many anglers fish Elvis Presley Lake in hopes of catching quality catfish. Most of the effort comes in the twilight and evening hours. The lake record is pictured here. Anglers typically tightline various baits like night crawlers, chicken liver, or even Kool aid flavored chicken. Over 9,000 Flathead Catfish were stocked in the lake in 2018.

Left: Elvis Presley Lake crappie anglers can take advantage of a fishery that has a good population of crappie. Most anglers targeting crappie use both jigs and minnows fished around or over off shore brush tops close to deep water. Bank anglers have the best luck during the spring spawning period.

Right: Based on creel survey data from Elvis Presley Lake, anglers fish for a variety of species.

Below: In April of 2014, a tornado ravaged the area around Tupelo including Elvis Presley Lake. Structural damage occurred to several of the lake facilities including this fishing pier. MDWFP had to close the entire facility for a short time to repair the damage that occurred.
